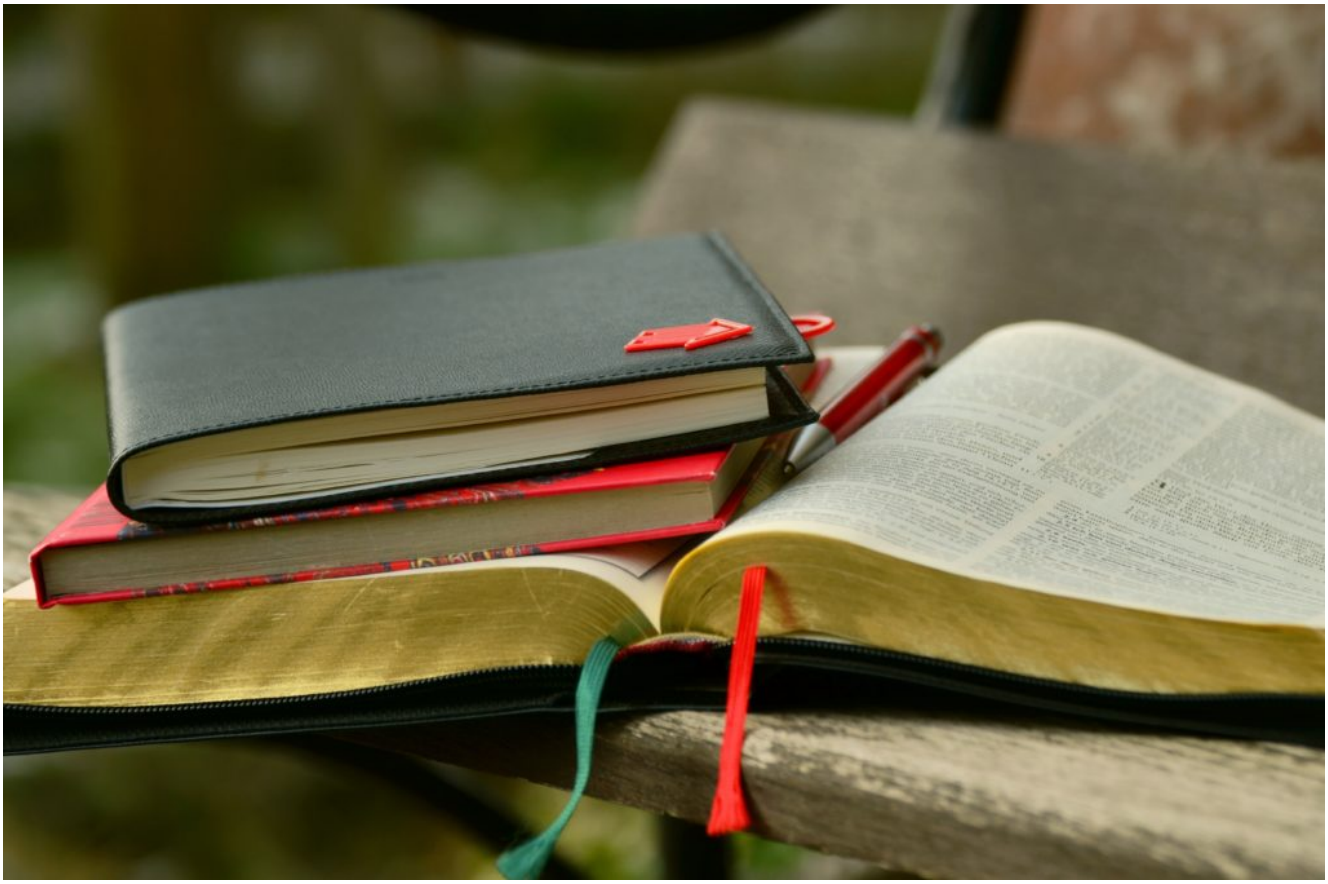
New RSA Early Career representative



Camilla Chlebna, a postdoctoral researcher in the REENEA project on Regional Energy Transitions at the Carl von Ossietzky University in Oldenburg, Germany, has been appointed the Early Career representative to the RSA Board.

Her research interests are the geography of innovation, agency based perspectives on sustainability transitions and the conceptualisation of power and politics in economic geography. She did her PhD at Oxford Brookes University on the subject of the role of institutions for the development of the wind energy industry in Britain and Germany.

Camilla holds a Master degree in Planning from Oxford Brookes University, UK, and a Bachelor degree in Regional Development and Planning from University of Technology, Vienna, Austria.

Commenting on her new role, Camilla said that "having been a member of the organisation for almost 5 years I am looking forward to actively contributing to the Regional Studies Association as Early Careers Representative on the board in the near future”.
